the city. As a local NEWS paper and Advertising Medium it has no competitor. Secretary Elkins' views on the Long bridge as made public in THE STAR yesterday, are interesting. Particularly notable is the parallel drawn between this city and the town of Elkins. W. Va. In that flourishing community there was orge, and still is, a highway bridge which a railroad desired to use. Public sentiment in Elkins, W. Va., was favorable to the railroadnot to be regarded as a strange thing when it is remembered that Elkins owes its existence to the railroad-but it did not want to endanger the highway. A compromise says the Secretary (but where the compromise comes in is not evident)-was finally effected by permit- tion to the CORSETS. ting the company to build a bridge of its own three hundred yards from the highway; a highly proper arrangement, because the rights of the public did not suffer. But this does not Long bridge to the Pennsylvania company; it merely indicates that the people of Elkins, W. Va., have profited by our experience. In 1870 but we can choose for you-and rightly. the railroad was given practical possession of Long bridge upon the understanding that it would maintain the public road alongside its tracks. In 1892 the great corporate power came to the conclusion that it needed more room, and Secretary Elkins yesterday declared himself to be unequivocally in favor of a total surrender of the structure to the railroad and the construction of a new highway bridge by the public. The injustice of such a plan is made all the greater by the suggestion that this highway bridge shall be located "at the most suitable point for public travel," away, of course from the foot of 14th street. In the case of Elkins an existing highway bridge was protected against steam railroad tracks. In the case of Washington an existing highway bridge, injured somewhat by the proximity of railroad tracks, is, it is proposed, to be displaced by a railroad structure, leaving the provision of a highway bridge to the future, and to the chances of overcoming the opposi tion to another bridge below the head of tide water on the Potomac and of securing from Congress the large appropriation necessary for the work. Elkins could choose between two kinds of bridge. The real choice of Washing ton for the present and years of the future i bridge at all. In view of Washington's expe between a combination bridge and no highway rience with the Pennsylvania railroad and its friends, the people of Elkins, W. Va., were most sensible in compelling the railroad to build its own bridge. Had Washington insisted on this when the first effort was made to lay tracks on Long bridge neither the railroad company nor Secretary Eikins would have had ground for arguing that because the gratuitous presence of the railroad has made the highway dangerous, therefore the entire bridge should be given up to tracks and trains, and the pub-lie dispossessed of valuable property and privi-Col. Ernst's judgment is unquestionably correct when he says in his report on the Pennsylvania railroad's improvement bill that the ground which the company asks for in connection with increased depot facilities is worth fully $1,000,000; and he is no less right when he advances the proposition that "it would be greatly to the advantage of the city if the required space for passenger and express termiminals were obtained elsewhere . . and the present passenger station were removed from the park, due compensation being made to the company for all vested rights." It is deplorable that one of the most beautiful features of the plan upon which the city is builtto the Potomac -should be permanently severe and disfigured. The true policy, as Col. Erns indicates, would be to eradicate blemishe rather than aggravate them. If, how ever, Congress insists that the railroad company shall not only retain possession of its reservation privileges but shall also be given the 245,325 additional square feet of parking now asked for, then certainly neither the United States nor the District of Columbia should be called upon to shoulder any of the expenses attending either the depression of tracks or the building of a real bridge across the Potomac in place of that abomination which threatens to do millions of dollars' worth of damage, but which continues to exist in spite of adverse report and unanimous public sentiment.

Curious people, who cannot quite understand why the District should be euchred out of its regular legislative day in the House of Repre sentatives, are exposing an astounding amount of ignorance by asking "who is this Beltzhoover whose objection upset Mr. Hemphill's effort to obtain justice for the city of Washington Can it be possible that there are persons in this community absolutely without information as READ A. KAUFMAN'S "AD." to the statesman who has shown himself capable of ejaculating the words "I object"? Statesman Beltzhoover's sketch of his career, as it appears in the Congressional Directory, would indicat that he is now serving his third term as a Representative of the nineteenth Pennsylvania dis trict; that he is a democrat, and that he "spent the summer of 1887 in Europe." That Mr. Beltzhoover should have succeeded in evading public attention for so long is an evidence of extraordinary ability.

The able and vigorous reports of Maj. Davis and Col. Ernst on the local bridge and railroad problems, printed in yesterday's STAR, together with the strong and admirable reports concerning the railroad situation recently made by the engineers connected with the District government, constitute a valuable contribution SUITES, 5 pieces each, with spring edges a the discussion of one of the most important former price, 875. REMNANT DAY AGAIN TOMORROW. FRIDAY.

This weekly visitor is at hand, presenting his claims for your consideration. They are meritorious. There is no better institution planned calculated to save you money. The benefits are not all yours, however. We share them also. The "end in view," the object of this "Remnant Day" is to keep the stock of the various departments complete, fresh and stiractive. For instance, in WRAP, SUIT, JACKET, GLOVE, BOYS' CLOTHING, UNDERWEAR, HOSIERY and other departments where there is a regular line of sizes the medium are senerally sold first, and one or both of the extremes are left. Frequently we can't possibly duplicate the sizes sold; then the line is irreparably broken—incomplete. Rather than keep these from week to week and have them cloy the stock, we withdraw them, give them a low remnant price, and sell them Friday. Then, in CHINA, BRIC-A-BRAC, STATIONERY, JAPANESE and other departments goods will get scratched, soiled, mussed and otherwise defaced from one cause or another—these are also withdrawn from regular stock and marked without reference to cost.

IN BLACK AND COLORED DRESS GOODS, LACE, RIBBON, LINEN, and other piece mode denartments there are stacks of short lengths left every week—useful to you, but not to us. These also and DLACK AND COLORED DRESS GOODS, LACE, RIBBON, LINEN, and other piece goods departments there are stacks of short lengths left every week—useful to you, but not to us. These also are marked at very low remnant prices—so it is throughout the entire store. Supplying as we do the wants and needs of thousands of our patrons daily leaves us piles and piles of such remnants. Our only alternative is to get rid of them, and we realize that the only way to do it is to put very low prices on them. Un-
